ELECTRICAL STRIKE SETTLED.

Both Sides Feel That They Have Gained the Victory.

The strike of the electrical workmen is finally disposed of. The workers reported yesterday morning at the various shops where they have been employed and worked for half a day, when work was ended and the men went on their annual picnic. The contractors and the representatives of the workmen's union have signed a contract which seems to be mutually satisfactory, and both sides have won what they consider to be a victory. Inasmuch as the terms demanded by the strikers upon quitting work were not the terms of the final settlement, and so far as the present contract arrangements what the contractors contend they were always willing to grant, the contractors are therefore contented with the results. The men have secured the signature of the contractors to a two years' contract, agreeing to pay $2.50 per day wages after January 1, 1932, to pay double for all overtime to a territorial jurisdiction of twenty-five miles radius about the city of Washington, and to permit the men to go to work at 7:30 o'clock, quitting at 4 p. m., the union is jubilant. The union men themselves not to work for any non-union shop while they are members of the union, and a cash forfeit has been posted. These terms are especially satisfactory to the contractors. Hitherto it has been the practice of non-union contractors to compete on jobs where union labor was called for. In the event of securing such a contract these shops would engage union labor for that job, discharging the men on the completion of the work. This the union contractors have considered unfair competition and have long sought a method to prevent it. This, it is believed, has been supplied by the terms of the present contract with the workmen, to whom it is also satisfactory, inasmuch as it will serve to give the work to such union shops as provide union men with more or less permanent work.

The strike seems to have been an unfortunate and unnecessary means to the end secured. It appears that in the past few months both the contractors and the representatives of the union have been working toward an agreement. A committee from the union and a committee of the contractors have been in frequent conference. An agreement for consideration was first offered in these conferences by the union. The contractors noted various objections, and each side yielded certain points until it appeared as though a final agreement had been reached. The contractors undertook to draw up a contract according to the terms agreed upon in conference, and this was to have been submitted to the union as a body for acceptance and signature. The Secretary of the Electrical Contractors' Association, C. E. Graham, who is also manager of the National Electrical Supply Company, drew up the document. He states that he gave a copy of the document to that body for final action. This document does not appear to have reached the union.

It seems to have been the opinion of the workmen that the negotiations had been dropped on the part of the contractors, as nothing further was heard from that quarter. Tuesday, July 9, a meeting of the union was held at this meeting the workmen decided that if the contractors' contract, submitted by the union at the very beginning of the strike, was not signed by July 15, the union would strike.

THE PETITION DENIED.

No Appointment of a Receiver for an Investment Company.

Justice Bradley yesterday signed an order denying the petition of Sarah E. Jenkins, who, on her own behalf and as executrix of the estate of Sime Hicks, asked for the appointment of a receiver for the Security Investment Company. Robinson White and Archibald M. MacLachlan were also named as defendants in the proceedings.

It was claimed by the complainant that she controlled sixteen shares of the stock of the investment company, which she alleged should be redeemed at any time at par value. When she desired this, however, she declared that she was offered only 50 cents on the dollar. She also claimed that the investment company is practically insolvent.

DOYLE HELD FOR GRAND JURY.

The Result of Coroner's Inquest Into Howard Dent's Death.

Charles Doyle, the workman who killed Howard Dent in the stall of the United States Express Company's stables last Thursday evening, was held by a coroner's jury yesterday for the murder of Dent. The verdict of the jury was that Doyle came to his death as the result of stab-wounds in the neck, inflicted by a razor in the hand of Charles Doyle. The dead negro's wife, Fanny Dent, was present at the inquest, which was conducted by Coroner Nevitt at No. 6 precinct station.

Several witnesses were called. The first testimony was given by Thomas Grayson, who lives at 3 F Street north-west. Grayson was the driver of the wagon at the United States Express Company's stables. He testified that he went to the stable on the evening of the murder at 6:30 o'clock. Dent, he said, had said, had an altercation with Doyle, and Doyle had requested Doyle to go to a nearby lunch-room and purchase something to eat. Dent, he said, entered the conversation by telling Grayson (the witness) to take hold of Doyle's feet. The witness testified that after a few words passed between Dent and Doyle, the latter entered the harness room and returned with a razor. The witness testified that he saw Doyle strike Dent's throat with the razor. Dent then followed Doyle toward the harness room.

The former offered to fight Doyle, and repeatedly told him that (Doyle) was a coward. When Doyle lunged at him with the razor, Dent staggered to a bench along the left side of the stable. The witness said he saw blood, but did not realize that Dent was badly hurt. He did not see Doyle escape from the stable. Deputy Coroner Glazebrook testified to having performed an autopsy on the body of Dent. The direction of the wound showed that the blow had struck in the back and that the weapon had been brought forward. The witness testified that the backbone, necking it. All the arteries were severed. Death was due to loss of blood. The wound was about three inches long and was located in the neck, and occurred not more than three minutes after the wound had been inflicted.

THE GREENFIELD CASE.

Justice Bradley Hears Part of the Testimony on Both Sides.

Justice Bradley yesterday heard testimony relating to the case of Mrs. Catherine Greenfield Russell, asking for the custody and care of her grandson, Joseph Ashburn Greenfield, who has lived with Maggie Bell and her husband since infancy. Final action was postponed pending the hearing of further testimony on Monday next.

THE BEES HOLD THE BOX.

Not Yet Routed by the Postal Telegraph Company.

The hive of bees unwillingly owned by the Postal Telegraph Company, and situated in an iron distributing box on the corner of a sixty-foot telegraph pole at the corner of Florida Avenue and 2nd Street, is still holding undisputed dominion among the wires. Manager Ribble, of the company, who operates the box, has been unsuccessful in his efforts to get possession of the child, but has been unsuccessful. On the part of the bees, it was testified that they had always been in possession of the child, had cared well for it, and are still well able to do so.
